BRACKEN LIBEL RETRIAL BEGUN; ISSUE STATED

Mr. A. G. Hodgson, counsel for Bracken, took strong exception to Mr. Russell's remark to the jury that it is "practically charged that Phipps was in receipt of payment from the woman in question." Mr. Hodgson stated that the article in the information said: "It is reported that Phipps did so." Mr. Russell's statement might give the jury a wrong impression from the start, Mr. Hodgson contended.

"We have not charged Detective Phipps with any wrong doing. We do say that that report concerning him was made," Mr. Hodgson declared.

His Lordship suggested that the article, in which the alleged libel was written, be read to the jury by Mr. Russell, which was done.

FIRST WITNESS
N. H. Boden, of the Boden Press, Vancouver, was the first witness called by the prosecution. He said that on August 11, 1928, dated August 11, was printed by his press for Bracken and Marshall, the two accused, who he testified, were publisher and editor of the paper.

Mr. T. G. McLellan, counsel for Marshall, said he had been instructed by his client to admit that Marshall was the editor of the information and had written the article "The Capital Infected."

Detective Robert Knox, of Vancouver Police Department, told of Bracken's arrest, and stated that he had been shown by Bracken in the latter's home a copy of the August 11 issue of the paper. Detective A. G. McNeill, also of the police department, said he saw a copy of the information in the detective office at the police station. He had also seen copies of the August 11 issue of the paper.

At 4:30 p.m. Mr. Justice Murphy adjourned the trial until tomorrow morning, when, it is likely, the first witness on the stand will be Detective Marcus T. Phipps, the informant in the case.

Police Commissioner W. E. Staneland, of Victoria, is attending the Bracken-Marshall trial on behalf of the Victoria Police Commission. A large number of spectators listened to the opening proceedings this afternoon.

Chinese Ink Block Secret Is Disclosed
The Chinese ink block, except for those in mourning, is always red, the color signifying happiness or good luck. It is made of vermilion and the leaves or fibres of mugwort, an aromatic plant of the genus Artemisia. The seal is extensively used and a signature without one is sometimes invalid. The seal and the ink block, therefore, are important in daily affairs and the wealthy pay high prices for good blocks. The best kind is used by artists and calligraphers, whose paintings and scrolls are always adorned by their personal seals to show the genuineness of the work. The seal marks on art works are made with such quality blocks that the color remains fresh after long exposure to light. Seal marks on ancient paintings and scrolls often look as bright as if newly stamped. Such blocks command high prices and are obtainable only from a few well-known makers.

RECKING WELL GUARDED
The material in a block of ink is vermilion, castor oil and mugwort leaf. The makers claim that the more costly contain gold dust and the powder of precious stones which impart a lustrous tone to the ink. The better kind is called pa pao, meaning that the article is made of eight ingredients of great value. The exact recipe is never disclosed, the makers keeping it secret, because of professional jealousy and business rivalry. The best vermilion is produced in Shenchow, Hunan Province, and is obtainable in Pukien from the local stationery dealers. Castor oil is the ordinary

RUSHING from Lakehurst with pictures and stories of the landing of the Graf Zeppelin from Germany, reporters narrowly escaped injury or death when their plane made a forced landing near Trenton, N.J. kind sold by chemists. Some makers use tea oil instead of castor oil, but the former is too sticky for the best ink pad. Mugwort leaf is obtained locally.

The process of making begins with the washing and cleaning of the vermilion, which, being a mineral substance (mercuric sulphide), contains impurities. The cleaned vermilion is put in a vessel covered with dark-colored glass and exposed to the sun to dry. The dark glass is to prevent the light from affecting the color. After drying, the vermilion is mixed with very fine powder in a mortar. The powder is then thoroughly mixed with castor oil and pounded mugwort. If the proportion of oil is not right, or the mixing thorough, the mark will have an oily halo and the color will fade. The mugwort leaves are first boiled to remove impurities, and then dried in the sun. The dried leaves are pounded in a mortar into a pulp. The final product is a thick paste, which is then stored in porcelain cases for sale.

COLOR REMAINS FAST
The blocks are sold by the liang (37.3 grammes) and the prices vary greatly. The common kind is sold at 30 or 40 cents a liang, while the best kind costs forty or fifty times more. The most expensive is sold in seven grades, from $16 a liang down to $1. They are packed in small porcelain cases covered by cardboard, and finally in wooden boxes of attractive appearance. For the porcelain case and the wooden box, the price is 40 cents in charged. The ink paste is sometimes sold in glass bottles.

Seal marks made with the ink block of the Li Hwa brand never have oily halos and the color remains fast. The shop has been in existence for nearly two centuries. The product of the other ink makers at Changchow is also dignified with the name of pa pao, though the low price suggests the absence of costly ingredients. The ordinary kinds sell at 64 cents a liang. In Foochow there are no special ink makers, the article being turned out by the local stationery dealers at prices ranging from 36 cents a liang down to 10 cents for the lowest grade.—Chinese Economic Bulletin.

Well-Known Pianist Appointed Conductor
Recently appointed conductor of the new Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra of Toronto, Reginald Stewart, the Canadian pianist, who visited Victoria two seasons ago, gave the orchestra recitals with Paul Kochanski this summer at Chautauque, N.Y., where, in addition to the regular series of fortnightly symphony concerts, the New York Symphony Orchestra, Ernest Hutcheson gave eighteen pianoforte recitals.

In the violin and piano recitals, Stewart and Kochanski played all the sonatas of Beethoven, Brahms and Bach.

The last concert of the New York Symphony Orchestra, actually ending its existence as an organization, took place at Chautauque in August. When the musicians, after being accorded an ovation from the huge audience, played Haydn's Parceller Symphony, and as they left the stage, blowing out the candles on their desks one by one, many persons in the huge auditorium were touched to the point of weeping.

The new Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra concert, to be broadcast over a network of radio stations, will be directed by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Ernest Hutcheson.

The coin has been in the family of Mr. Munday's wife for several generations.

TRAIN DRIVEN BY DEAD MAN CRASHES CARS

Engineer Believed to Have Died Unnoticed While at Throttle—Train Without Guidance Runs Wild

FIREMAN ESCAPES BEFORE COLLISION

GREEN RIVER, Wyo., Oct. 25.—An Oregon Short Line freight train with the hands of a dead engineer at the throttle yesterday crashed into another Short Line freight standing in the yards at Fish Cut, 100 yards west of the Green River, and demolished four cars. The engine rolled down an embankment. Ray Welker, of Montpelier, Idaho, the engineer, was believed to have died before the crash. Clarence L. Boynton, fireman, also of Montpelier, jumped from the cab just before the collision and received minor injuries.

Boynton said Welker had not spoken after the train left Granger, thirty-nine miles west of Green River, and made no effort to jump when the collision was inevitable. Road officials said Welker apparently died at the throttle, as he was an experienced engineer, and the accident could not have happened otherwise.

The crew of the caboose of the freight which was standing in the yards heard the whistling of the engine two miles away. When it became apparent the train was "running wild" the crew took to safety.

A minute later the engine ploughed through the caboose and wrecked three other freight cars, one containing lumber, a second packed with merchandise, and a third with wheat.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS OF WORK

MRS. McLEAN EXPLAINS OBJECTIVES OF LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Crystal Garden Manager Gives Data Regarding Forthcoming Ice Carnival

"The Local Council of Women has to deal with the problem of forty-seven societies, representing two hundred thousand women," said Mrs. W. McLean at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club, which was held in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel yesterday.

The Rev. Montague W. Bruce occupied the chair, and spoke a few words at the conclusion of the luncheon, introducing the speakers. Mr. James Adam told the club of the dance which will take place under the club's auspices in the Empress Hotel on Tuesday next. He asked all members to support the dance and to bring as many guests as possible.

Mrs. W. McLean was the principal speaker, and gave an interesting account of the activities and aims of the Local Council of Women, of which she is secretary. They have been working in Victoria for a long time, she said, and had been founded by Lady Aberdeen thirty-four years ago. Their object was to take up particularly the matters which had to do with women and children in the Dominion affairs. She touched on the immigration question, both from the medical and racial points of view.

CAREFUL STUDY FIRST

"After we have studied any particular question," said Mrs. McLean, "we bring the matter to the notice of the Government, with a view to getting new laws which will cover the matter made, or old laws amended." The council has always urged the necessity of having women on a jury, she said, and she went on to stress the fact that she represented "a society of societies" inasmuch as the problems of women's societies throughout Canada were sent to the council for solution.

Speaking of mentally defective cases, the speaker pointed out that there were many who should not be sent to an asylum. What brains they had, she argued, should be developed. The council had never before made a public appeal for funds, and as they were now appealing for $200,000, she was glad of this opportunity of making their aims and objects clear. The apportionment for Victoria was $85,000.

Captain J. R. Kingham, of the 16th Canadian Scottish, made a short speech on the subject of recruiting. His regiment was in need of more young men, he said, into whose minds it inculcated discipline and the care and knowledge of a rifle.

ROTARY ICE CARNIVAL

Captain I. W. Aude, manager of the Crystal Garden, gave particulars of the forthcoming Rotary Ice Carnival. There would be one or two races for boys, he said, and a partner race of two heats. He also remarked that there would be eight pairs, as an improvement on the six pairs which obtained last year. Brentwood, University School, the High School and one other school would participate in the Secondary School relay race, and there would be a race for girls under sixteen years of age. Other attractions would be a brown-bail game, an obstacle race, and a centipede race, and there would be a number of prizes offered for the best costume at the dance.

Mr. T. Yull gave a brief talk on the hardware business. He believed no industry was so intimately associated with the development of the province.

WINDSOR CASTLE MYSTERY SOLVED

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Unaccounted activity within the walls of Windsor Castle and mysterious lights in the famous St. George's Chapel there were explained today when it was learned that bodies of minor members of the Royal family were being removed. Their remains will now rest in ground specially consecrated for them at Frogmore, Windsor Park, the burial place of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort. The bodies were transferred because the Royal mortuary beneath the chapel is becoming full. Henceforth the mortuary will be reserved for Sovereigns and heirs to the throne. Newspapers today said that about nine coffins of minor members of the Royal family had been removed. These were said to include those of three relatives of Queen Mary.

"STOOL PIGEONS" DISAPPEAR

The job of "stool pigeons," or what was more euphemistically termed "secret service operators," is gone in this Province under the new regime. Evidence, dishonorably obtained, is no longer to carry any weight in a court of justice. Mr. R. H. Pooley, the Attorney-General, has ordered that all cases based upon evidence should be withdrawn; in other words, that is a plain intimation that prosecutions cannot be built up upon a process of perpetrating crime so that crime may be brought to light. The practice of employing "stool pigeons," attacked time and again both in the courts and in the press, was persisted in by the late Attorney-General although repugnant to public opinion. Now it has been stopped, as everyone could well expect that it would be, under the administration of Mr. Pooley, who is in the habit—in politics, in the law and in all his relations in life—of playing the game according to the rules of straightforward conduct.

A RECIPROCITY TREATY

A trade treaty of reciprocity went into effect between this country and Australia in 1925 and the Dominion Government is satisfied with its results. The same satisfaction does not prevail in every industry because British Columbia lumbermen have been urging the Federal Minister of Finance to obtain for their trade with Australia the benefits of the British preferential rate. Any such benefits, however, must be contingent on Australia receiving similar benefits in this country. If, for instance, Canadian fruit were allowed into Australia free during the season when this country is producing, then it will be expected that Australian fruit, during the producing season there, will receive a similar privilege in Canada.

Whatever the benefits that have accrued from the trade treaty in question there is no doubt whatever that a certain dissatisfaction exists. The supporters of the Government are constantly lauding the pact and pointing to what it has accomplished. As a matter of fact, on the basis of figures published by our own Department of Trade and Commerce, its results have not, as yet, been very pronounced. The only conclusion to be drawn from these results is that Australia has been the principal beneficiary, as the following table of our imports and exports to Australia during the past five years will show:

Fiscal Year	Imports	Exports
1923-1924	$1,037,451	$19,923,997
1924-1925	2,634,713	12,035,086
1925-1926	3,049,054	15,411,746
1926-1927	6,296,000	18,966,000
1927-1928	5,302,000	14,192,000

On the basis of the foregoing figures the Dominion Government is perfectly satisfied, yet they show a falling off in the value of trade in exports from Canada to Australia of upwards of $5,000,000 as between the last fiscal year and the fiscal year of 1923-1924 when the trade treaty was not in effect. On the other hand, they show an advance in value of the imports taken by Canada from Australia from $1,037,451 to $5,302,000. There is unquestionably still a favorable balance on the side of this country, but whereas that balance was $18,886,546 in the fiscal year of 1923-1924 it has declined to $8,790,000 for the fiscal year of 1927-1928. On the basis of these figures it would be interesting to know the extent to which Canada has benefited by the trade treaty. The plain conclusion is that last fiscal year, under the trade treaty, our exports to Australia were valued at $5,781,997 less than they were in 1923-1924 when the trade treaty did not exist. These figures, at least, dispose of any suggestion coming from Australia that this country is getting the best of the treaty, and, inversely, they show that there are amendments to that treaty necessary if it is to benefit Canada to the extent that was expected.

THE SOCIALIST PROGRAMME

The Labor Party may not be going "the whole hog" in the programme on which it will appeal to the British people in next year's election, but it has at least laid those cards on the table which were always known to be present, if up its sleeve. It has pronounced on the means it will employ, if given power, to control banking, currency and credit. There are to be family allowances, and municipal and co-operative trading. There is to be transference to public ownership of the coal, transport, power and life insurance businesses. Separate legislative assemblies are to be created in Scotland, Wales and England "with autonomous powers in matters of local concern." There is to be the improvement and extension of Factory Acts, Mines Regulation Acts, Minimum Wage Acts and other industrial legislation.

Despite its embracing programme Labor is not wholly satisfied. At the congress where the programme was decided upon there were two sets of opinion evident. The gathering was undecided on whether there should be a comprehensive programme, or one "short and snappy," which would carry the electorate of its feet. The conclusion reached has been that "comprehensiveness" will have the advantage of appealing to a large body of public opinion. The Labor Party has thus encumbered itself with a score and one projects all advocating the socialisation of the country, and it is going to encounter considerable difficulty in explaining to the mass of the electorate what it means. The programme, indeed, to many will be a structure in the clouds.

The National Executive of the Labor Party has put the hall mark of Socialism on the programme so that Laborites in Britain can no longer object to being called Socialists. The choice lay between temperate reforms and drastic Socialism, and the latter is selected. A colossal enterprise of legislative enactment is planned, vulnerable in all its details. It is on its Socialistic tendencies as a whole that the Labor Party will be judged at the polls, and what it has in view will be unintelligible to the greatest number of the electorate. Probably it expects that electorate to take a leap in the dark and to commit its fortunes to a process of experimental legislation, the bringing into effect of which would most certainly occupy many sessions more than any Labor Party is likely to be in power in Britain. What Labor proposes cannot be accomplished with the rapidity that it can be set forth in a single document. That document aims at the Socialist millennium by setting forth a detailed plan of the future Socialist state. It is for or against such a state that the people of Britain will vote in the forthcoming general election.

EUROPE AND ITS PROBLEMS

Lord Melchett has spoken in outright fashion in telling a New York dinner gathering that what Europe wants in the matter of any final disposition of the German reparations problem is the non-interference of the United States. He not only intimates, but says, that Europe is competent to deal with its own problems. The United States is not a party to German reparations, that is to say there are no indemnities which she receives as an outcome of the Great War. It is quite true that the Dawes Plan, under which reparations have been paid up to the present, was designed by an American who held the role of an impartial observer. He prepared a basis of settlement to which the Allies subscribed, but any adjustment of the terms is a matter for the nations concerned. Lord Melchett, in effect, has informed the United States that Europe does not want interference and in the same breath has let it be known that Britain has no desire to reopen her own debt settlement with America.

The warning about the forthcoming reparations conference is timely. It is based on what has happened in the past, and particularly the attitude assumed, and the uniform criticism which arose, in the United States on the subject of the recent Franco-British Naval Pact. Lord Melchett says: "Whenever an attempt is made in Europe to come together, we are always greeted with suspicion and hostility on the part of the people on this side of the ocean, who attribute to us all kinds of motives which never enter our minds." Suspicion in a nation is a bad characteristic. It is unworthy of a people like the Americans and should be excoriated from their method of thinking.

The prohibition law of the United States has meant increased export trade for Canada. In the five-year period ending with 1913 this country's exports of all alcoholic beverages in no year exceeded $2,000,000 in value. For the twelve months ending in August last Canada exported alcoholic beverages to the value of $23,816,787 to the United States, whisky alone being valued at $18,620,150.

The British National Federation of Merchant Tailors has passed a resolution recommending the shortening of credit. In other words, there is a desire that men should dress within their own means rather than within the means of their tailors.

HE RESOLVES TO SAY NO MORE

O my soul, keep the rest unknown!
It is too like a sound of moan
When the chariot wheels
Pale Horse has neighed
Yea, none shall gather what I hide!
Why load men's minds with more to bear
That bear already all to spare?
From now always
Till my last day
What I discern I will not say.
Let time roll backward if it will;
(Magicians who drive the midnight quill
With brain aglow
Can see it so.)
What I have learnt no man shall know.
And if my vision range beyond
The blinkered sight of souls in bond,
By truth made free—
Till let all be.
And show to no man what I see.
—Thomas Hardy.

The race of mankind would perish did they cease to aid each other. We cannot exist without mutual help. All, therefore, that need aid have a right to ask it from their fellow men; and no one who has the power of granting can refuse it without guilt.—Sir Walter Scott.

Times of general calamity and confusion have ever been productive of the greatest minds. The purest are from the hottest furnace, and the brightest thunderbolt from the darkest cloud.—C. C. Cotton.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

It is said that one of the marked distinctions between man and all other animals is that man is a laughing animal. But actually the most marked distinction between man and all other animals is that man is the most credulous of all animals. If man wants to believe anything very badly, he believes the thing he wants to believe, however absurd his belief may seem to his fellowmen. For example, Dr. Robinson, a gentleman of England, believes that he has been in radio communication with the planet Mars. He believes more than that. He believes that his spirit, temporarily forsaking his body, has been in direct communication with a woman in Mars. Thus, if anything sensational happens in this world, and apparently in other worlds also, there is almost sure to be a woman in the case.

According to Dr. Robinson, the woman he met in Mars, and who personally conducted him around the planet and showed him everything that was worth seeing in it, is not personally attractive. She is shapely like a barrel or a tub, but she wears a dress that is extremely attractive and very distinctive. So that before you could say Jack Robinson the Martian woman had made a hit upon Dr. Robinson. The recombined spirit of the credulous doctor appears to hanker after the Martian nymph and has been trying to reopen communication with her through the radio.

The doctor paid for a dispatch addressed to the lady in Mars, and the British Broadcasting Company has sent the message winging on its way through the ether. He is waiting for an answer to his dispatch. Other people are waiting for it too; but the credulous doctor's wife is not numbered among the credulous few. The incredulous lady of the earth does not appear to believe in things that are beyond belief. She does appear to believe that she is mistress in her own house. So when the doctor and his friends gathered at the Robinson residence to await the expected answer to his message to Mars, they were told by the practical-minded Mrs. Robinson: "There will be no foolishness around this house." Feeling no encouragement at home, the doctor went to London, where, if we believe all we read about it, many follies are perpetrated.

The part of mankind which laughs will assume that the incident is closed; but the part of the race which delights in mysterious manifestations will reject any such hasty assumption. Dr. Robinson will persist in his belief that he has held communication with Mars and that he has been shown all the sights worth seeing in Mars. He will receive more messages from the planet, messages which are quite unintelligible to him, but which are perfectly intelligible to him. We have heard sounds come over the radio that might have been interpreted as coming from any of the countless numbers of the heavenly bodies or from regions that are anything but heavenly. If Dr. Robinson were as practical-minded as his wife seems to be, he would take advantage of the notoriety he has achieved and establish a new religion, or rather a new religious denomination. If he did that he might find, as many others have found before him, that "there are millions in it."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle says he has abandoned the active pursuit of spiritualism because it has interfered with a pursuit that is much more profitable, literature. Rev. Dr. Almee McPherson, who burst with meteoric splendor upon the religious atmosphere of California a few years ago, has undergone an eclipse and winged her spectacular way to Great Britain, drawing all her stage properties in her train. But after the first burst of enthusiasm, the star of the celebrated evangelist also burst and left London cold and indifferent.

P. T. Barnum was wrong when he said the people liked to be humbugged. The great showman would have been right if he had said the people are easily humbugged, and they are particularly easily humbugged by religious and occult specialists. The idea that the spirits of the departed may be called back to earth appeals strongly to simple souls who yearn to learn something definite respecting the mysterious realms from whose bourne no traveller has yet returned. But the mediums which profess to summon the spirits from the undiscovered country cannot invariably endure the test applied in the case of the Will of Endor. The spirits do not always come when they are called.

Dr. Robinson is a specialist of another and of a new kind. He calls the spirit from the living body and carries it on a flight to a world which is not absolutely unknown but which is physically quite as inaccessible as the invisible spirit world. The credulous will find much that is fascinating in that idea. And if the doctor can do for others what he has done for himself he will have a tremendous following and an occupation far more profitable than that of a mere twentieth century evangelist or a common or ordinary spiritualistic medium. If we were not so beset with the sin of scepticism we should prefer a trip in the spirit to Mars to an excursion in the body in either an aeroplane or a Zeppelin.

"Betwixt Heaven and Charing Cross"

By MARTIN BURRELL
(Toronto, the Macmillan Company of Canada, 1928.)

Mr. Martin Burrell is so well known to British Columbian as a former member of the House of Commons and Minister of Agriculture in the Borden ministry that they are apt to forget that in his capacity of joint historian of the Federal House he has since had an opportunity to turn to literary work, and like other members of the Civil Service, at for instance Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott and Mr. Robert Stead, add to the production of Canadian literature.

Essays as a contribution to literature are perhaps among the most widely appreciated and best understood, because they escape the precision of history and the limitations of biography.

Mr. Burrell covers a wide field of literary and social effort, but his addresses fall into well-defined channels, most of which have been traversed by the great British and American essayists.

In the study of English literature Milton has inspired many biographers and essayists, and to that supreme figure of the Great Revolution Mr. Burrell pays his tribute. He doubts if Milton is as much read as formerly. He has interesting things to say of the greatest American essayist, Ralph Waldo Emerson, who of all the writers of that remarkable New England school expresses the serenity of an age which is lost, and which the world will never see again.

Those who are interested in contemporary leaders and in crises the echoes of which are still reverberating in the mind, will find food for reflection in Mr. Burrell's opinions on Lord Birkenhead, on the persuasive power which Colonel House wielded over President Woodrow Wilson during the days preceding the entrance of the United States into the World War, and on the influence of Lord Beaverbrook in British politics and press circles.

There has been too much of the turnover of the soil in which the events of the Great War were reared, much of which has been tared rather than grain, and the majority will agree with the author that things are said in the "Intimate Papers of Colonel House," which suggest the review in "A President's Adviser," which would be far better left unsaid in the lifetime of people who were actors in those stirring scenes.

TREATS OF LORD MORLEY
Such diverse personalities as Napoleon, Lincoln and John Morley are the subjects of consideration. It is scarcely a matter of surprise that the critical judgments which Lord Morley passed on the notables of two nations should prevent his contemporaries passing judgment upon him, particularly when his biography uncovered the personalities and associates which made him a remarkable figure in a testing time of British politics. Morley in examining himself on the request of Voltaire on the superiority of men of action over men of reflection, and now the tables are turned on the quondam blunder, which cost General Gordon his life, the Irish controversy, and on Morley's Indian administration.

In his references to Canadian history, which Mr. Burrell has had special opportunities to study, the articles on D'Arcy McGee and on Old Niagara are of particular interest.

Mr. Burrell pays a kindly tribute to his colleague in the Civil Service in telling of Dr. Campbell Scott's poetry, and its influence on John Macfie.

Apart from these excursions in literature, history and biography, Mr. Burrell has some of the lighter touches in other essays, as "Concerning Golf" and "Manners and Etiquette." The last-named article has the choicest vein of humor in the whole volume.

VERNON TO REBUILD DEHYDRATING PLANT

VERNON, B.C., Oct. 25.—Indications are that Bulman's Ltd., will rebuild the dehydrating plant producing 10 per cent of the dried and dehydrated apples in Canada, was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. Wednesday night the citizens of Vernon, called together by Mayor Stewart, resolved to give the necessary assistance to Mr. Bulman to insure continuance. An extra effort will be made to fill contracts which on a quality basis this organization had secured as far away as Seattle, Wash.

Jots From Mythology

VALKYRIES, the attendants of the god Odin of ancient mythology, hovered over the battlefields and bore the souls of the bravest men to Valhalla, where they were eternally feasted and honored. The Valkyries waited upon the fallen heroes and gave them meat in vessels made from ash. They were always regarded as coming in storm clouds or riding the winds.

ISLAND EDITOR SUBMITS DESIGN

Plan for Emblem Unites Union Jack With Colored Bars for Each Constituent Province

Mr. W. A. W. Hames, of Courtenay, editor of The Courtenay Free Press, has forwarded to The Colonist two colored designs for a suggested Canadian flag. He explains that it has the approval of the Courtenay Assembly of the Native Sons of Canada.

The designs differ only in that one carries the maple leaf in green on the Union Jack, placed as in the Australian flag. The main portion of the coloring consists of nine bars, vertically placed, representative of the provinces, four white, three red and two blue. The four white bars represent the original members of the Confederacy, Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The three red bars represent British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, with Manitoba, the first two entering and the third being created soon after Confederation. The two blue bars represent Saskatchewan and Alberta, the newest comers into the family of the Canadian nation.

Mr. Hames thinks that the arrangements of the bars would be a tribute to France, as one of the mother nations of the Dominion, and parent of Quebec. The two designs are attractive, probably that with the maple leaf being of widest appeal as distinctively significant of Canada.

A STUDENT'S CORRECTION

Sir,—Nine months ago the writer assisted in a musical recital in this city. Prior to the concert, announcement appeared in the press that this event was to be the occasion of the writer's debut, which statement was incorrect and unfair to the performer, who was then and still is a student.

A later issue partially corrected this error, but the misconception has persisted.

HON. N. S. LOUGHEED GOES TO OKANAGAN

Minister of Public Works Will Inspect Public Works in Interior

Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Public Works, left last night for the Interior of the Province to look into some matters connected with the department which require special attention and which he hopes to examine himself on the request of the residents of the districts.

One of the important sections which he will inspect is the shore road along Okanagan Lake, which has for a long time been giving trouble through washouts. Last Spring there was considerable trouble occurred there through this cause, and the request has been made by the residents of the districts affected that the minister should pay a visit to the section and devise what course should be followed to check the intrusion of the waters.

He is accompanied by Hon. W. A. McKenzie, the member for Similkameen, who is interested also in some of the works to be examined, and the member for the district in which they are located.

There has been some difference of opinion as to whether parts of the roads affected should be altered in location so as to avoid the encroachments, and this aspect of the situation will be looked into by the ministers.

Soon after the return of Mr. Lougheed to the capital he intends to leave for Hazelton and vicinity, where he will look into the matter of the location of the Haislaigat Bridge. There are other matters affecting his department in the North that he will inspect during his visit to the districts affected.

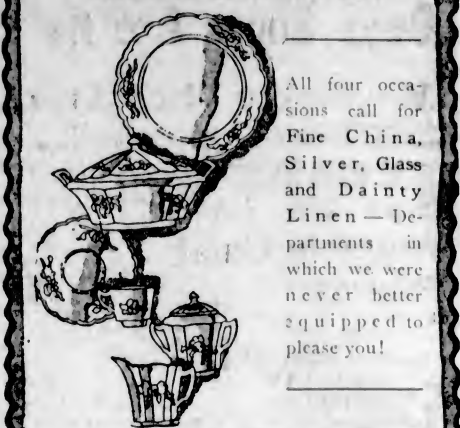

REUNION IS HELD OF A.O.U.W. LODGES

The sixtieth anniversary of the A.O.U.W. of British Columbia was the occasion Wednesday of a most enjoyable reunion when the three lodges of this city joined in giving a banquet, followed by a dance in their hall on Government Street.

Bro. Charles T. Wrightworth acted as chairman. Addresses were given by Grand Master Bro. McIver, of Port Hammond, who has just returned from the session of the Supreme Lodge, Grand Secretary Bro. J. T. McIlmoyle, gave most valuable information, showing the vast amount of money paid by fraternal insurance societies, reaching many billions, and the great advantage of fraternal insurance, especially to families.

Bro. Semple amused the large gathering by a most pleasing recitation, while Bro. Landsberg did his part by delivering a most humorous speech. Great credit is due the committee for its excellent work in making a success of this their first effort in establishing the Fall entertainments which will be followed by many others as the season advances.

DAWN
This is the rose more fair than any flower
That any garden boasts.
The rose of dawn, comes courage with this hour
To arm earth's tottering hosts.
Each one who treads black labyrinth of fear
Through all the cruel night,
Will find when primrose buds of dawn appear
Their fragrance brings delight.
Their fragrance brings delight and peace and power
And faith from bonds released,
This is the rose, more fair than any flower
Which blossoms in the East.

TARIFF RETARDS NATION'S TRADE

Mr. C. H. O'Halloran Places Cause of Deficit in Government Budgets to Trade Restriction

Matters pertaining to Federal affairs were discussed by Mr. C. H. O'Halloran at the Ward Two meeting of the Saanich Liberal Association, held in the St. Mark's Hall last night.

He pointed out to the audience that the United States with its high tariff wall would probably face a deficit of $100,000,000 at the end of this year, and that Australia, another high tariff country, had experienced deficits for the past several years. This, he said, was entirely due to the suppression of trade brought about by high tariff. Production decreased when such restrictions were made.

On the other hand Canada, with little or no tariff, had increased its trade and increased its production, with the result that financially the country was in a healthier state and the Government had been able to reduce the national debt during the last year by $73,000,000.

Mr. Norman Whittaker, Liberal candidate in the Saanich riding in the last Provincial election, thanked those present for the support given him at the polls. He said that any policy the Tolmie Government might introduce that would benefit the people the Liberals were bound to support, but the Liberals reserved the right to criticize any policy that they believed was not in the interest of the Province as a whole.

Arrangements were made at the meeting to hold a social and dance early next month.

UP-ISLAND BUSY

District Commercial Superintendent of B.C. Telephone Company Back From Tour

Business is good up-island, according to Mr. F. C. Patterson, district commercial superintendent of the British Columbia Telephone Company, who returned late yesterday from a business visit to Port Alberni, and to Courtenay and Campbell River.

He went to Port Alberni for the purpose of installing a new agent at the district exchange, Miss Elizabeth Redford, in succession to Miss Manning, who is resigning. He found the condition of the road over the Summit in good shape, and further work being commenced in reducing the grades.

Campbell River is busy with logging interests, the advent of the Campbell River Lumber Company adding considerably to the industrial population.

ESQUIMALT BOARD DEBATES SALARIES

Decides Against Increase for Teachers—Request for Children at Musical Festival

At the Esquimalt School Board last evening the question of salaries was discussed, and the board decided that it could not see its way to any increase.

The question of the liberation of children for the Musical Festival to be held next April, which was brought up before the Saanich School Board recently, was left on the table pending further discussion. With regard to the health report, it was stated that the health report of last month was "Exercise in Relation to Health." The results of the lectures delivered on this subject were most satisfactory and the last school year had shown an attendance of over 97 per cent of the total number of pupils on the list. Trustee A. Lockley presided.

Property holders are automatically placed on the voters' list, but licence holders and poll tax payers must go to the City Hall to register if they wish to vote at the forthcoming election. The voters' list will close at 5 p.m. October 31.

Official of Commons Is Visitor Here

Mr. H. Crossley Sherwood, who has charge of the Orders of the Day, in the House of Commons, is here from Ottawa, in the course of a visit. Mr. Sherwood told The Colonist that the permanent officials of the House greatly regret the transference of Hon. S. F. Tolmie from the Federal to the provincial field, and will miss him greatly when the House reassembles, as he has been regarded as one of the most popular members of the Commons during the past decade.

MANY VEHICLES USE ROADWAYS

FIRST HALF OF MONTH SHOWS HEAVY MOVEMENT OF LOCAL MOTOR TRAFFIC

Figures Issued for Two Trunk Highways Leading Into City on West

While the tourist season is over for 1928, there still continues a very substantial traffic over the Island Highway as well as on the Sooke Road. For the first half of the month of October there were 20,741 vehicles passed over the Langford-Goldstream section of the Malahat Drive, going north and south. For the same period from October 1 to October 15 there were 8,700 vehicles of all kinds passed over the Colwood-Sooke road.

In connection with the traffic on the Malahat it is interesting to note that in that time the vehicles passing in both directions were made up as follows: Private automobiles, 18,776; stage, 726; trucks, 1,189, and motorcycles, 157.

The record kept on the travel passing along the road indicates to the Department of Public Works the character of the wear and tear that there is on the roads.

The figures that are given are for eight hours of the day only. It is the common practice to add thirty per cent to these traffic figures to represent the added traffic for the remaining hours of the day.

This would make the number of vehicles passing over the Malahat, about 27,000 for the first half of the month, and on the Sooke highway something like 11,000.

The Whale of Otter Point

A True Tale of Fifty-Seven Years Ago

By C. J. S. CLARK

The famous or is it notorious? whale of Metchoin has passed into the annals of Provincial history, but how many have heard of the whale of Otter Point?

Firstly let us satisfy the natural curiosity as to the whereabouts of the place before we proceed to mention the time and the whale.

Otter Point is a rocky headland on the south coast of Vancouver Island, nearly twenty-five miles west of Victoria by water, and about five or six miles west of Sooke. It was named in honor of Lieut. Otter, (later Commander), of H.M.S. Dauntless (?) in the forties, when he was in charge of the survey made then. Commander Otter was killed at Sebastopol leading his men in action.

Just west of Otter Point is Salmon Bay, so-called evidently because the salmon on their way to the Fraser River always pass very close inshore here.

They were likely the quarry which induced our whale. Now, too close and so stranded? Now, the Metchoin whale has left an odoriferous memory behind, but the Otter Point whale, according to history, was immediately set upon and "secured" for consumption.

At this time a settler named Thomas Tugwell was turning the forest land into a farm, acquiring about 800 acres between Otter Point and Tugwell Creek, while resident there.

In a letter dated April 5, 1871, addressed to Governor Muir, Tugwell tells him he is "sorry to trouble but must obtain redress." He says he is a settler at Salmon Bay, where a whale came ashore. His employee, "going three days securing it," went to Sooke to get some Indians to help cut it up, when "the whole of the Sooke Indians were taking some of what Maxwell had cut," and when Maxwell remonstrated, one of the Indians "drew a knife on him."

They carried away "eight canoe loads amounting to about ten or eleven tons of blubber." Tugwell asked the Governor to "investigate and see if he could get it back."

THIS WHALE A ROYAL "FISH!"

The whale was written on newspaper boasting a crest, no less, and attached thereto is a "Note re stating that the Indians had as much right as Tugwell to the whale. Neither had any right to it, as the whale is a Royal Fish, the head and tail belonging to the king, and the tail to the queen. The reason of this whimsical division was to furnish the queen's wardrobe with blubber, a reason, though, more whimsical than the division itself, as the whalebone of a whale lies entirely in the head!"

The answer was despatched to Tugwell on April 25, by Governor Muir, and he was informed that he had "no redress," that the whale belonged to the Crown, and that Tugwell had no more claim to the whale than the Indians, and his Excellency is not disposed to interfere on behalf of the Crown.

It is not often that Government officials unbend so far as to permit a jest to creep into an official document, but there is a note that such valuable information is here set forth, we can govern ourselves accordingly, and when a whale washed up on the beach, we should inform Their Britannic Majesties, that a fresh (?) supply of whalebone for "the queen's wardrobe" has arrived, and send their property as soon as possible.

History, or even local tradition, does not record anything more about the whale here, and we must hear about Otter Point is salmon run so close inshore that two men, "Jamie Kiel and a man named Young from Esquimalt," arranged to catch them and salt them down for sale, and bring barrels, salt, and fishing paraphernalia in large quantities in preparation therefor.

As an old pioneer resident tells the story: "There were three partners in on this two men and a horse. The horse had to haul the nets ashore, etc., and he was the only one to make anything out of the business. He did get his board, but the other two didn't even make that. Many years later a successful business in salted salmon was in operation for a season at this point, and for the last twenty-four years, two fish traps here have caught salmon each year in thousands for canning and mild curing in Victoria.

OLD-TIME TRAVEL.

An interesting item appeared in the Spring in The Colonist under the heading "Fifty Years Ago Today," in which it stated that Mr. Tugwell arrived in town with the figurehead of the ill-fated S.S. Pacific, which was washed up on the shore at Otter Point a few days after the wreck. Mr. Tugwell came to Otter Point about the early sixties, and carried the mail to Victoria for many years, even in the days when there was only a trail to the "road" to Sooke. When the "road" was put through in the eighties, the contract was taken by a man named Snyder for $800, and as the distance by land was eight miles, it must have been "some road." The average width was eight feet, with wider places at intervals to let two wagons pass each other. A shorter and much less hilly route nearer the sea has been talked of for many years, and even surveyed, but the "hundred-dollar-a-mile-road" is still being travelled over today as the main highway.

About 1887 Mr. Tugwell sold his farm to Messrs. Arthur Floyer and the late Edward Gordon, and after that, was proprietor of the Colonial Metropole, an hotel which may be remembered by many old-timers in Victoria.

He made an occasional visit to his "old stamping ground" as he called it. Several old Indian "tilliks" in the early days, for many seasons cut down spruce and white pine trees convenient to sea and river, and stripped the cones off them, and loaded them into their canoes and delivered them in Victoria.

One of Victoria's younger artists of note was mentioned yesterday, Miss Jean Donald, who is a member of the "Esquimalt Four" which gave its own exhibition some months ago at the Crystal Garden. Two others of this group are also showing in the present exhibition, Miss Helen Streetfield and Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn. One of the most pleasing things entered by Miss Streetfield is "Harbor by Night" (No. 166), which has very striking pictorial qualities. For these it relies, partly, on the strength of contrast between dark and light, the buildings towering above the water being ink black, while the walls are pierced with bright lights gleaming from within. These are reflected in the harbor.

and slim masts of ships defined against the sky indicate line below which cannot be seen. A Wreckham-like "Nocturne" (No. 174), by Jean Donald, nearby, is clever. Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn is represented in the same room by a Kwakiutl Indian (No. 167), with a mask which, while it is not beautiful, stimulates curiosity. All these paintings of the rapidly disappearing Indian customs have a special historical value. Helen Streetfield's "Octopus Tree" (No. 168) is a graceful fancy.

AN ARRESTING RECORD
One of the most prolific of Victoria's artists is Mrs. Rose Bullen, who shows a trio of pictures which are an arresting record of the Fraser and Columbia River country. Nos. 153 and 154 (Hope Mountain) and No. 155 (Basaltic Rocks, Columbia River). These reproduce with fidelity the coloring peculiar to each locality. In the Fraser River scene (No. 153), the crags above the silver ribbon of water are slate-colored; in the Hope Mountain view, pale mauve and blue bronze predominate; and red is the dominant color in the last. These pictures all express the true lover of nature.

A fiery sunset, seen from Saxe Point, Esquimalt, forms the subject of Mr. M. C. Hanna's arresting picture (No. 150). Another shore scene, but depicting a very different subject, is E. M. Deane's "White Lagoon," which has atmosphere, nice composition, and good perspective. A handsome ringed pheasant, pardonably vain, struts in crimson vest and gay plumage in Rose Willis' No. 147. The landscape in this picture is also pleasing. Colonel L. G. Fawkes' "Active Pass" (No. 148) makes much of the ruggedness of the very beautiful bracken which adorns these islands. It also introduces the silver poplar. Bold contrasts of light and shade drew the eyes to the horse grazing in a sunny field in Susan Gibson's No. 151. Miss J. Crease has made the arbutus the subject of study in No. 24 "Arbutus" (No. 128), by L. A. Lovell, is one of the pleasing flower pictures found in the gallery.

One of the most brilliant of Canadian etchers and engravers is Charles H. Scott, of Vancouver, and it is a great pleasure to find some examples of his work in this collection. His work has grace, balance, strength, expressive values, and beautiful technique. His "Vancouver" (No. 1 in the Etching room), and "Rue de l'ave, Bruges" (No. 3), the latter giving a glimpse of trees through an arched gateway, are charming works of art.

THE COMMITTEES
Committees have worked for many weeks to perfect the arrangements for the present successful exhibition. The conveners being as follows: Convener of oils, Mrs. Loveland; convener of water colors, Miss Maude Lettice; crafts, Miss Kathleen Lothian; pastels, Mrs. Maude Page; cataloguing and secretarial work, Mr. J. S. McMillan. Mrs. P. M. Young is acting as general convener of the door, and Mrs. Hodgins of the tea, each having a new group of assistants every day.

The exhibition will be open daily from 10:30 to 6 until the end of the month. Tomorrow, being Saturday, the exhibition will be open to school children in the morning, and to the public from 7 to 10 in the evening, as well as in the afternoon.

WOULD GROUP CHILDREN
TORONTO, Oct. 25.—The grouping of children in different grades in the schools is retarded, according to a report made by a committee headed by Professor of Psychology E. D. McPhee, University of Toronto, in a recent address here. "If we cannot fit the child to the school," the professor said, "we must fit the school to the child." Declaring that there were more people in the mental hospitals in Canada than in the public schools, Professor McPhee said 4 per cent of the children entering primary schools were headed for mental hospitals. He regarded the situation as serious, and grouping the children in different grades, he thought, would relieve it to some extent.

Jones' Game Spotty In His Eighteen-Hole Championship Tests

The Master Golfer of the Age Just Managed to Scrape Through First Day's Ordeal in U.S. Amateur Classic for Past Three Years

Bobby Jones, greatest shot-making genius of the age, has an Achilles heel. In view of the winning performances staged by the Georgian, this may seem like a rash statement, but the fact remains that this master golfer, this winner of several amateur and open titles within the past five years, has a weak spot that one of these days may change the golfing map. Reference is made to his eighteen-hole complex.

It will be recalled that Jones, ever since the inception of the two single round matches in the United States Golf Association amateur championship programme, has had tough struggles, and for the last three years has just barely managed to come through the ordeal of the first day's golf.

Fortunately for Bobby, in each instance he has been helped by golfers who, through stage fright or sheer inability to take advantage of the situation, have faltered somewhere on the road and given Jones a chance to stage a comeback when the outlook was darkest.

Take, for instance, that first round at the Baltusrol Golf Club in 1926, immediately after Jones had won the British open and the American open as well. There Bobby met a namesake, Richard A. Jones, Jr., of Westchester Hills, who by the widest stretch of imagination couldn't hope to approach the perfection of the Atlantan emperor.

Yet Richard A., who is just good enough to be considered among the first ten in the metropolitan district, carried Bobby to the eighteenth hole before the issue was decided in favor of the defending title holder. What a scare that gave Jones! As a matter of fact, it was the handwriting on the wall, for on Saturday of that same week the champion tasted the dregs of defeat when in the final round he was defeated by his ancient enemy, George Von Elm, of California.

MCCARTHY LEADS UNTIL END
The next time the Achilles heel was exposed to the golfing world was at Minikahda, when Jones faced Maurice McCarthy, a lusty New York lad, in the first round. Now Maurice can give Jones a battle any day in the week, yet had the pair met at thirty-six holes it is more than likely that McCarthy would have been trailing Bobby by at least six holes when the pair retired at luncheon. The single round complex proved too strong for Jones, who, after the defeat, was left with the ignominy of being "down" to the Georgian student practically all the round.

And then came the climax, where McCarthy, with untold fame and glory beckoning him, faltered on the way and gave Jones a chance to put on the works. Bobby won the last three holes of that eighteen-hole match to win 2 up, the youngster going a stroke over par at each hole.

Again at Brae Burn this year Jones met Roy Gordon, his British opponent in the second round. With all due respect to the fine golf played by the Massachusetts star on the inward nine, it is more than probable that had Bobby been faced to face with a George Voigt, an Arthur Yates, a Ross Somerville, a Don or Ray Moir, or that British champion, Tommy Perkins, he would have been trailing by five or six holes at the halfway stage. Jones, if memory serves, took 42 to the turn and was only one down to Gordon.

The record books tell the story of how the champion won on the nineteenth hole, after Gordon had run in a heart-breaking putt on the eighteenth hole to carry on the match. A tee shot that landed in the woods cost him his chance for fame and left Jones once again in a position where he could mow down his opponents to win the title for the fourth time.

Yes, Jones has an Achilles heel, but he also has an uncanny ability to win in the face of great odds. That's what makes him the great golfer of the age; he combines a golf brain with the golf shot. That was where George Von Elm fell down in the first round of the national at Brae Burn, and it marked his second summary defeat in the title meeting.

VON ELM BEATEN
At Minikahda the previous Summer Von Elm was beaten by Harry Legg, and he and Jones were all in that they both had narrow escapes at Baltusrol, the Utah Tiger going to nineteen holes with the long-driving Augustus Ellsworth to remain in the fray.

The strange part of the whole matter is that Jones, playing thirty-six hole matches, usually has his man so far down at the eighteen-hole stage that the opponent hasn't a chance to come back, yet he struggles woefully if the match is a scheduled single round.

Consider the way he beat Harrison Johnston, Francis Guilmet and Chick Evans at Minikahda—10, 9, 9, 11 and 10 and 8 and 7 respectively. In other words, each of the trio was really beaten at eighteen holes, but if that had been the extent of the match Jones would probably never have come through.

Again at Brae Burn, once he had surmounted the single-round complex, Jones went through the rest of the championship like a cruising taxi on a crowded street.

As a result of this fear of eighteen-hole matches, the British golfers are complacently patting themselves on the back in the belief that Jones, shot-making genius though he is, will always find the British amateur championship goal an impossible one over the single round route.

They admit that the open is Jones' meal, and that the incomparable Georgia star has won every tournament worth the winning with the exception of the aforementioned crown of John Bull. Here's what one British has to say on the subject:

RATE PERKINS HIGH
"America was fortunate in having Bobby Jones to defend her golfing honor in the final of the amateur championship at Brae Burn. Even if it is played remain in force, that is, the British titleholder, Thomas Perkins, the British titleholder, capable of beating any amateur in the world with the exception of Jones and George Von Elm."

"Perkins, in our opinion, rates as the third amateur of the world, but he met Jones, the master of the age. Rightly or wrongly, we should be prepared to back only one other man against Jones in a serious match—Walter Hagen."

The outstanding feature of Brae Burn was the supremacy of Jones through the tournament. Only once did he falter, and that was in the second of the eighteen-hole matches. Even in private matches over eighteen holes Jones has a temperamental restlessness that appears to be quite non-existent over the longer route or in any form of stroke play.

For this reason we believe that Jones will always find the winning of the British Amateur, so long as the cause of the Democratic nonline, but the throng was no less uproarious a few minutes later when a film chair, in which he was seated, rolled on the rostrum, creaked and then collapsed.

"The 'Babe'," intently listening to the remarks of Mr. Davis, discovered his rights to late. Newspapermen sitting at a table beneath the rostrum scrambled in every direction as the home-runninger dashed forward, but the player averted a complete fall by clutching steadfastly to a nearby railing. Grinning sheepishly, Ruth righted himself.

ERNIE LEACOCK SIGNS TO PLAY WITH VICTORIA

Former Local Simon-Pure Will Appear With Capital City Squad in New Coast Hockey League

IS THIRD AMATEUR SECURED FOR TEAM

Ernie Leacock, flashy defenceman, who played with the local amateur team here last Winter, has been signed to play with the Victoria Cubs in the new Pacific Coast Hockey loop, which will open at the Willows Arena on November 20. Leacock was a great favorite with the Victoria fans last season, and the announcement that he will play in the new pro-league with the Capital City squad will no doubt be welcomed.

Leacock is a Banff boy and learned the game in British Columbia. He played with Portland early last season, but moved to this city during the last part of the season. In the deal which brought Leacock to Victoria, "Chick" Baum, who appeared with the Vancouver Monarchs last year, goes to the Rose City.

Included in the Victoria roster will be three of the best amateurs who played in the intercity amateur loop. Dave Downie, right-winger of the Monarchs, and Earl Robertson, diminutive goalie of the same team, have already been signed, while Leacock makes up the trio.

Hagen and Farrell May Pass Up Northwest on Present Tour

INFORMATION received here yesterday intimated that Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, and Johnny Farrell, United States titleholder, would pass up the Pacific Northwest on their present tour. It was learned that Hagen and Farrell have been booked to play at Springfield, Mo., next Sunday, in an exhibition match with Horton Smith and Ed Dudley, and there appears to be little chance of the two American stars appearing in British Columbia.

Earlier advices stated that the pair would play in Vancouver next Monday and here Tuesday, but apparently they have altered their plans.

Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, and Johnny Farrell, United States titleholder, would pass up the Pacific Northwest on their present tour. It was learned that Hagen and Farrell have been booked to play at Springfield, Mo., next Sunday, in an exhibition match with Horton Smith and Ed Dudley, and there appears to be little chance of the two American stars appearing in British Columbia.

Earlier advices stated that the pair would play in Vancouver next Monday and here Tuesday, but apparently they have altered their plans.

McLARNIN ENTERING WELTERWEIGHT CLASS

Vancouver Boy Will Fight Grogan in Detroit Nov. 23—Will Get Chance at Title if He Wins

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, will make his first appearance in the junior welterweight boxing division in Detroit on November 23, against Tom Grogan, according to an announcement made by his manager, Charlie "Pop" Foster. Foster received a wire from Manager Dick Dunn, of the Olympic, Detroit, clinching the match on terms which are satisfactory to McLarnin.

If McLarnin is successful in stopping the Oklahoma boy, he is to get a chance against Mushy Callahan for the world's junior welterweight title in December, it is said. The venue of this bout has not been named.

McLarnin and Foster plan to leave Vancouver next Wednesday or Thursday for Detroit.

Delightful Plays To Be Given at Garden Saturday

The new stage of the Crystal Garden will be the scene of two charming plays on Saturday evening, "The Man Who Stole the Castle," and "A Dud of Cupid's." In the former, which is a picturesque tale of the eighteenth century, the star part will be taken by Ted Coton, who is looked upon by experts as the cleverest boy-actor British Columbia has produced.

The strong cast of grownups in support includes: Miss Nellie Scowcroft, Mr. Noel Jones, Mr. George Henry Hallett, Mr. Douglas Cobbett and Miss Margaret Goldsmith. "A Dud of Cupid's" is an original one-act play written recently by Mrs. Dorothea L. Ross, of Moose Jaw, the regional vice-president of the Canadian Authors' Association, and is being produced in Victoria for the first time Saturday evening.

CEDAR POLES DISPUTED

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Court order restraining removal of a large quantity of cedar poles, subject of dispute in pending litigation, was obtained by the White Pine Lumber Co., Ltd., Nakusp, B.C., against E. W. Kopecki and J. Brown, of Appleton, B.C., on an application before Mr. Justice Gregory today by J. A. Grimmett. The injunction was made returnable in one week, and was obtained on the ground that Kopecki and Brown had not lived up to an agreement dated January 12, 1928, to supply the poles to the plaintiff company, but had, instead, after accepting part payment for them, sold a quantity of them to a third party.

At The Playhouses

PLAYHOUSE Dolores Del Rio wears several beautiful shawls during the course of the action in "No Other Woman," Lou Tellegen's production now current at the Playhouse Theatre. Spanish shawls are a hobby with the lovely Dolores, and it is said her collection is valued at several thousand dollars.

COLUMBIA Karl Dane made up as a mummy—George K. Arthur emulating Julian Eltinge and disguising himself as a flapper—these are two extremes in the art of disguise that are very successfully and hilariously carried out in connection with "Detectives," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy co-starring the comedy team, and now playing at the Columbia Theatre. In addition to the feature attraction, Hammett, the ventriloquist barber, is also appearing.

COLISEUM With "Bill's in Town," THEATRE a comedy running about an hour, the Lee Jaxon Players are continuing to please large audiences every evening this week at the Coliseum Theatre. Lya de Putti plays the leading role on the screen this week in a story of the American army in Germany after the Armistice. It is called "Buck Private" and is a comedy. United States soldier's love for a German girl.

CAPITOL "The Glorious Trail" THEATRE is a Western picture way above the average of its type, made so by the daredevil stunts and the fine acting performance of Ken Maynard, star of the production. The audience at Capitol Theatre, where it was shown last night, manifested its pleasure in the picture in no uncertain manner. The stage features this week include Cecile Barbeard, concert soprano soloist; Rees and Hansen, an acrobatic novelty pair, and Thayer and Oura, solo dancers; Harold Bechtel, and the Capitol Stage Band.

DOMINION Clara Bow overplayed her first part in motion pictures and it nearly cost her her career. The incident was related by the red-headed Paramount star to Malcolm St. Clair, the director, during the making of her current starring picture, "The Fleet's In" now showing at the Dominion Theatre. "As a schoolgirl in Brooklyn I had won a personality contest in a magazine," Miss Bow told St. Clair. "One of the prizes for this was a promised part in some motion picture. The sponsors of the contest tried their best to get me a role, but it was a long time in coming."

VARIETY "The Cheerful Fraud," THEATRE Reginald Denny's latest Universal starring picture, which is showing at the Variety Theatre tomorrow, will prove to be one of the most popular pictures of the season. It is based on the novel by K. R. G. Browne and was directed by William A. Seiter, who has made all of the star's recent successes. Also on the same bill is Richard Barthelmess in "The Noose."

Baliol Holloway, Mr. Colbourne, who has from the first promised the best, is making good in full measure by introducing this famous and gifted actor to Canadian audiences in Canada. Many Canadians have undoubtedly seen Baliol Holloway not only in England, but during his visits as a guest star at the Theatre Guild in New York City in 1927, when he played Sir Colenso Ridgeon in Shaw's "Doctor's Dilemma" and "The Great Khan" in Eugene O'Neill's "Marco's Millions." Baliol Holloway will also be seen here in the roles of William Shakespeare in "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets," and King Henry V in the swiftest scene from Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth."

Fritz Kreisler to Appear at Royal Tomorrow Night

One day Fritz Kreisler, now one of the most famous of virtuosos, was recalling his poverty-stricken youth. He was given a powerful physique, an extremely quick mind, a sensitive faculty of observation, a love and understanding of many things besides his art, and an infinite capacity for enjoying life which was and is a predominating characteristic of the man.

MOSLEM COUNCIL PETITIONS KING

JERUSALEM, Oct. 25.—The Supreme Muslim Council of Jerusalem yesterday telegraphed to the King, whom they hailed as a symbol of Christian civilization protesting against what they describe as Jewish encroachment in the dispute concerning the use of the "wailing wall."

The message said: "In the name of millions of Moslems, we request Your Majesty to see that justice is applied in this case, thus returning to Moslems such justice as was applied by them to Christians thirteen centuries ago."

The protest explains that in the seventh century, when the Moslems first occupied Palestine, the King Omar traveled from Hejaz to Jerusalem to insure Christians the safety of their holy places.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

A BLACK EYE

A black eye, to a person who has not a sense of humor, is an unfortunate affliction, and is apt to be a subject of jest at the hands of friends. The best thing to do under these circumstances is to grin and admit the worst.

Doctors have termed this condition "echymosis palpebrae," which means a discoloration of the skin of the eyelids by a bruise, which allows the escape of blood from the small blood vessels into the tissues of the eyelids.

The tissues about the eye are particularly susceptible to bruising, since they are very soft and have hard bones of the cheek and the ridge bone of the eye socket just beneath. Anything that strikes this area crushes the flesh and causes a severe bruise. Individuals having high cheek bones are more apt to receive a black eye from a blow than those without the prominent bony ridge formation.

A black eye usually requires from one to two weeks for the absorption of most of the blood, and usually some discoloration remains from three weeks to a month longer, but there is much difference between individuals. Those having a good circulation do not suffer much from puffiness and the discoloration does not last long. Others, with poorer circulations, may have badly swollen eyelids that remain discolored for a much longer time.

When you are first struck in the eye by the "doorknob" or "golf ball," it is advisable to apply cold compresses immediately and continue to do so for at least an hour. Ice water is the most satisfactory, since it will greatly retard the flow of blood into the tissues. The good old-fashioned remedy of applying raw steak to the eye had its virtue largely in the fact that it was cool and moist.

After two or three days, when all danger of increasing the hemorrhage of the blood under the skin is over, you may begin a gentle massage about the eye to assist in the absorption of the blood. Warm applications and gently rubbing in cold cream are also helpful. I do not advise puncturing the skin to drain away the blood unless the case is very severe, and then it should be performed by a doctor, as otherwise a serious infection might result.

If you are a lady and do not wish your husband to be accused of beating you up, you can apply a flesh-colored theatrical make-up stick to the bruised area. When this is powdered it will almost completely hide the discoloration. You can buy this theatrical preparation at almost any drug store. If you are a man, the best thing to do is to broadly grin and say, "You should have seen the other fellow."

Correspondents wishing to communicate with Dr. McCoy are advised that his address is Builders Exchange Building, Los Angeles, California, U. S. A.

FOR WOULD-BE TEACHERS

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 25.—A school of education is being established at the University of Alberta with a view to enabling students desiring to enter the profession of teaching at the end of their university career to do this far more conveniently than has been the case in the past. The university senate and the Provincial Department of Education have arranged for the opening of the school of education during the present session, but the scheme will not be in full effect until next year.

Wants Law Observed As to Motor Lights

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 25.—Civic and provincial authorities have been asked by the Royal Automobile Club of Canada to enforce the law regarding light regulations requiring that motor cars, whether in motion or stationary, have their lights in operation after dark. There is wholesale disregard of the regulations, the club states.

"The law requires that motor vehicles carry two white lights in front and a red light, of at least four candlepower, in the rear. No exception is made by the law whether the car be on a side street or under a street light; the vehicle must be lighted at all times during the hours of darkness."

NEW ANAESTHETIC

AMHERST, N.S., Oct. 25.—Spino-caine, a new spinal anaesthetic, was used for the first time in Canada at the Amherst Hospital yesterday. The patient, who underwent a foot operation, remained conscious throughout and suffered no pain. It is understood that only two places in the United States are using the new anaesthetic.

"BARBERRY BUSH"

One Girl's Marriage Problems
By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"And if I want to ask all our friends from Cottonwood down here for a sort of housewarming," Barbara might answer, in the same carefully calculated, light tone. "It's only because I don't want to seem rude and, more than that, I don't want them to be wondering and surmising things about us. Some Sunday afternoon we'll have a few roast chickens, and a lot of buttered bread, and I'll make a cake."

But Barry never would yield a point.

"Then I'll not be here!" he would exclaim, instantly aroused to the hostile attitude he had taken when the question had first been raised. And from a loving mood of confidence and content he would be angered, distressed and alienated from her completely again. "You know how I hate the idea of a lot of people roaming around here, criticizing and poking!" he would exclaim feverishly. "I'd hate it! I'll not stand it. You're enough for me, God knows, more than enough—my cup is full—I only ask my wife and my home and my work. And yet you want Harry Poett and Lucy Barnard giggling and yelling all over the place."

"I only thought that, when February comes, you cross-grained child, when the buttercups are up and the fruit trees in bloom, we could have the most delicious party."

"Party! Oh, my God, you conventional woman and your parties. Frosted coconut cake, I suppose, and molasses! All right, go ahead, give your parties, but I won't be here. I'll go over to Tomas and Maria Bettancourt will give me some stew for supper—tell them your husband loathes the whole damn lot of them."

"Barry! Barry! How silly you are. Stop talking like such a crazy man. Stop it. I'm not so crazy to give a party as all this excitement comes to. But I'm proud of my home. I'd love to have my old friends here."

But perhaps he would have flung himself away from her and started on his walk to the store, two miles away, his handsome head bent, his long legs carrying him in frenzied strides over the rough wet clogs of the fields.

Sometimes, in the beginning, Barbara wept after such a scene and went about her dinner preparations with wet eyes and a heaving breast. But it was not natural to her to harbor resentment, and Barry would scarcely be out of hearing before her love for him, her happiness in his affection and his content would melt her heart completely, and she would putter about the kitchen in a very fever of eagerness for reconciliation.

Barry, however, could carry bitterness of soul over some such trifling altercation as this for hours, and it was always Barbara who must make the first advance toward friendship. This she found it impossible not to do. No matter how unreasonable he had been, no matter how childish and rude; the knowledge that one apologetic, placating word from her would make him happy again was a temptation too strong to resist.

And when she had once broken the ice, Barry would soften instantly, clinging to her as if she had been indeed the mother whose part he found herself playing so often.

"Barry, you are so silly to let such little things excite you so. Don't you think that next time you could remember that we always come to an amicable agreement, that things always work out for the best?"

"Babs!"—he would turn at her knee, firelight aureoling his black mane with scarlet, his eyes pulsing with strange sapphire lights, in the shadow—"Babs, I promise you I will, on my sacred honor."

But he never did. It was quite impossible that he ever should, and although he never could understand this, Barbara presently did, and conceded in her heart, as women must concede the unthinkable and unbearable, that this was a part of the price she must pay for her genius husband.

On the other hand, Barry was childishly simple and indifferent to both his own beauty and to the serious attention that famous folk, in far-away and unknown New York, began to pay to him. Almost all his poetry was accepted, and although all the magazines did not pay well, and sometimes the work of two days would bring him in something like $10 or $12, yet the letters that accompanied the acceptances were astonishing to Barbara.

Eastern reviews were beginning to speak of him with great respect. Poets wrote him, poets of the younger school, and what they said made Barbara's heart sing. She kept all the letters that Barry would have used to wedge the table leg or light the fire.

Barry was working furiously now upon a period play, to be called "Napoleon III." If it was taken and produced, of course he and Barbara would have to go to New York and see it.

"Oh, Barry, imagine us in a box!" "I'd buy you everything, Barbara. You'd be the most envied woman in the world! We'd give entertainments that'd knock their eyes out."

This was the man talking, and on the whole she liked him less than the child. For sometimes, following this line of thought, he would become magnificent and affected, and Barbara would suspect from the nature of his discourse that in his own mind he thought he was talking to these poets and editors and managers in the East.

"If you write what's in your heart what does it matter whether the puffing fool of a public gets you or not? What the devil is the public to me? I'm free of 'em! I'll be damned if I'll kneel to 'em and lick their dirty boots. Write what you damn well want to write."

"Less damn, darling. You are merely addressing the simple rustic woman who is your wife!"

And then he would laugh suddenly, half ashamed, and perhaps come around the lunch table to kneel beside her and link his long arms about her waist.

"Barberry Bush, are you the most beautiful woman in the world?"

"I have been told so."

"Well, I think you are! Are you happy, darling—are you really happy down on this big, lonely place, with a cranky husband and no servant and no neighbors?"

"You know I'm happy!"

"Well, but you never say so, dear."

The fountain didn't bubble in quite the old way, perhaps. Marriage wasn't girlhood, wives had responsibilities, cares, soberer joys and closer fears than girls could know. Barbara and Amy had decided years ago that they despised these giggling, girlish wives who boasted that the great step made no chance. Wifehood was a change, and happy marriage was a business that demanded infinite courage and patience, like any other.

CANADIAN CLUB OF BOSTON WORSHIP IN HISTORIC CHURCH

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—Through the courtesy of Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, rector of the Old North Church, the Canadian Club of Boston, the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Club of Boston, and their friends, held a special service in the historic edifice Sunday, October 14.

A programme prepared by the executive committee, in addition to listing the order of service, informed the club members of the historic importance of the place in which they gathered. The following is taken from it:

"The first sermon preached in this church, December 29, 1723, was on the text: 'Mine House shall be called an House of Prayer for all people.' In the spirit of that text the Rector welcomes the Canadian Club of Boston to Christ Church, the Old North of Paul Revere fame. 'Christ Church stands today the oldest place of public assembly in Boston. Here, April 18, 1775, Robert Newman, sexton, displayed the lanterns that flashed from the tower a message that sent Paul Revere in haste to Lexington to give warning that the Regulars were coming.

"From the tower of this church General Gage watched the Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775. In this battle Major Pitcairn was fatally wounded and taken from the field by his son, who kissed his father good-bye and returned to the battle. Major Pitcairn lies buried in one of the vaults beneath this church.

"Samuel Nicholson, the first commander of the frigate Constitution, commonly known as Old Ironsides, also lies buried in a vault underneath the floor."

During the last census an old lady was asked how many children she had. Her reply was two boys; and when the man asked her whether both sons were alive, she answered: "Well, my eldest son, John is alive; the other one is in the Civil Service."

A HIGH OFFICIAL

The highest official in British Columbia, in point of altitude, is the fire ranger occupying a lookout station on Mount Carlier, in the Revelstoke district, 9,000 feet above the sea level. Even in summer weather he obtains water supply from snow.

Telephone communication with district headquarters enables him to turn in an alarm which can bring an army of firefighters to the scene in short order. From his exalted station this ranger guards an area containing 130,000,000,000 feet of British Columbia timber.—Government Bulletin.

STRONG CARD IS FACING O.C. SOCCER FANS

Well-Balanced Clubs in English First Division Will Meet in League Fixtures Tomorrow

INTERNATIONALS MIX IN SCOTLAND

LONDON, Oct. 25.—First Division soccer in England, recently has purchased almost weekly a crop of almost unexpected results, and it would be a bold prophet who can claim to predict what will be the outcome of the matches Saturday. Probably the strongest set of attractions is on the card since the season opened.

In a bunch are the following matches between clubs all well-placed in the top half of the averages and all struggling for points: Blackburn Rovers, league leaders at present, and West Ham United, Derby County and Burnley, Everton and Leeds United, Manchester City and Leicester City.

Arsenal, who have begun to buy great players, will be closely watched in their match with Liverpool, as the London club let themselves get left behind in the early games.

In the Second Division the leaders on form should win. Chelsea are at home to Southampton; Notts County travel to Bristol City, but their task would not appear to be too formidable, and Hull City go to Clapton Orient.

League football must take a back seat in Scotland on account of the international match between Scotland and Wales, which is being staged in Ibrox Park, Glasgow.

Preventable Fires Reported Numerous

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25.—Declaring that Winnipeg's fire loss last year was $200,000 higher than it should have been if more care had been taken by the citizens, D. A. Boulder, chief of the Winnipeg fire department, in a recent address here, said if the proper co-operation were received from the residents of this city, in preventing fires, the loss of both life and property could be proportionately reduced. He mentioned the cases of rubbish being left to accumulate in the corners of warehouses, stores and factories, as well as in alleys and vacant spaces about the city. Such rubbish is highly inflammable, he said, and therefore is ready fuel for the carelessly tossed cigarette butt, the still-burning match, and the stray spark.

To overcome these causes of fire the department is constantly carrying on a system of education in order to familiarize the public with the dangers attendant with such almost criminal carelessness, said Chief Boulder. He asserted that 70 per cent of the fires in Winnipeg were traceable to preventable causes, and he urged the citizens to co-operate.

CAMEO SHOWS WAY IN FEATURE RACE

Creech's Horse Gallops Home in Front of Serenader in Thrilling Stretch Duel at Tanforan

(Special to The Colonist)
TANFORAN, Oct. 25.—Bennie Creech is a diminutive horseman, but a mighty man when it comes to "prepping" them. Bennie staged a good show for some 7,500 racegoers at Tanforan today. He sent the well known chestnut mare, Cameo, out to win the day's feature piece when everyone was in the five-stallionate, Sanbeau. The purse was offered over the mile route, which indicated several of the Spenkel's Stake entries were getting their last run-around. Cameo won in a thrilling finish from the La Brie entry, Serenader, and House Girl, who closed in second and third positions. Creech's granddaughter, Ben Brush got a mighty ride from little Inzelone, or she might not have lasted long enough to get the verdict. Cameo, however, was running so stoutly it would have taken a real stake horse to catch her today. The time was good, 1:39 2-5, and took every eye in the house.

Merry Chase took the secondary feature, completely smothering all opposition.

The results follow:
First race—Five and a half furlongs: Face Cream (Inzelone) 1:44 12-10 12-10; Annie Mae (J. Jones) 2:29 2-10; Juicy (Russell) 2:30 2-10; Don Primo (R. Jones) 2:30 2-10; Don Primo (R. Jones) 2:30 2-10.

Community Social Set for Hallowe'en In Hall at Luxton

LUXTON, Oct. 25.—The annual Hallowe'en community gathering is being held in the hall on Wednesday next under the auspices of the Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute. Children will have supper commencing at 6 o'clock, to be followed by an entertainment at 8 o'clock, when all residents will be welcomed. Mr. Merryfield, the Cornish wizard, will give a concentration act, assisted by his daughter, Violet, and an assortment of conjuring tricks. In addition there will be songs by Mr. J. Bryant, always a favorite, and piano solos by Miss Evelyn Smith.

"I hear you are not going to marry Mr. Newcome after all. Why is that?"

"Oh, father thinks his position isn't good enough and mother thinks he is too old for me. My aunts think he is too good-looking to make a satisfactory husband, and my Uncle Jim says he has heard rumors about him. My cousins tell me he is a flirt, and I—"

"Yes, and you—what do you think about it all?"

"Oh, I think I ought to wait until he asks me."

CHAMBER HAS BUSY MEETING

DUNCAN ORGANIZATION DIS-CUSSES PROBLEMS OF DISTRICT

Direct Mail Connection to Lake
Cowichan and Produce Marketing Live Issues

DUNCAN, Oct. 24.—The monthly meeting of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce was held last night, the president, Mr. O. T. Smythe, occupying the chair.

Mr. Thorpe, for the public works committee, reported that the matter of the extension of the Lake Cowichan Road to Youbou had been taken up with Mr. C. F. Davis, M.P.P., who had assured the committee that the work would be undertaken at an early date. The Kapoor Road had also been taken up with the member and with Mr. Pooley, with every prospect of success.

A difference of opinion has arisen between the fish and game committee and officials of the Fisheries Department regarding conditions in the Crofton area and the Chemainus River. The fight for adequate restrictions will be continued by the committee and it is probable that the officials will be asked to visit Duncan, when evidence as to the real conditions will be laid before them. The chamber endorsed the actions already taken by Mr. Pitt and Major Rattray in the matter.

MAIL CONNECTION

Mr. Peterson brought up the question of direct mail connection between Duncan and Lake Cowichan. The present arrangement whereby the mail from Up-Island points is routed by way of Victoria is hampering business, and the matter is to be taken up with the post office inspector at Victoria. A special committee consisting of Messrs. Peterson, Kirkham and Dr. Garthe has been named to handle the question. Petitions will be circulated here and at Lake Cowichan in support of the proposal, and the co-operation of Nanaimo Board of Trade will be asked for.

Mayor Mutter and Mr. Peterson spoke strongly upon the question of a West Coast highway routed through the Lake Cowichan territory. The cost of building along the coast was prohibitive, while by the use of existing roads and the utilizing of easy grades, Lake Cowichan could be linked up with Port Renfrew by way of Jordan River to the south, and with Alberni to the north, giving two highway loops for Victoria and Nanaimo. Radiating roads would serve the West Coast adequately and at a small fraction of the cost of the coast route. The chamber will take the matter up through Mr. C. F. Davis, M.P.P., with the Provincial Public Works Department.

Conditions of agriculture in the district came under discussion, and a deplorable state of affairs was shown regarding marketing. One Lake Cowichan timber operator, it was stated, had endeavored to obtain twenty-five tons of potatoes in the district, but was unable to do so, although there were hundreds of tons of good quality potatoes here. He had been forced to send out of the district. The same applied to hay. Farmers had neglected to have their goods ready at appointed times when trucks called for delivery, and in other goods when the opportunity presented itself.

STAYED ON TRUCK

One merchant told of fifteen boxes of apples being shipped to a Victoria dealer from Duncan by truck. The apples were not removed from the truck, but shipped back to Duncan consumers next day. A Westholme potato grower had marketed six tons of potatoes in the same way, only to see them shipped back on the same truck to Chemainus. On motion of Mr. Kirkham, chairman of the agricultural committee, the Agricultural Society and Cowichan Creamery will be asked to appoint official representatives as members of the Chamber of Commerce to aid in solving agricultural problems.

MUSICAL RECITAL AT ROYAL OAK IS GREATLY ENJOYED

ROYAL OAK, Oct. 25.—A most successful musical recital was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. Arthur J. Wedd, Elk Lake. An audience that nearly filled the spacious music room was in attendance, and listened with keen enjoyment to the various numbers of the programme, which were splendidly rendered and received much well merited applause. The artists taking part were: Miss Zilda Coyette, L.A.B., pianist; Mrs. John Booth, vocalist; and Mrs. T. Amos, accompanist. The concert was under the auspices of the local Women's Institute, the proceeds going to the Solarium. The president announced that another entertainment will be held on Wednesday, November 14, Mr. Wedd kindly loaning his music room for the afternoon.

Series of Social Evenings Started by Chemainus Society

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 24.—The first of a series of social evenings to be held by the Chemainus Musical Society was on Tuesday. It is the intention of the society to devote part of the third Tuesday in each month to an entertainment of an informal nature, the first of these evenings having been an undoubted success. Thirty members were present, and after the usual practice, the committee for the evening, Mrs. Toynee, Miss Payne, Mr. Lang and Mr. Grey, took charge of proceedings. A guessing competition was held first, the prize winners being Mrs. G. Read, Mrs. Spurling, Miss Dora Spurling and Mrs. Halhed. Refreshments were served, a short programme following.

Those taking part were Mrs. Cole, who sang "The Air Folk"; "Just A-Weaving for You" as an encore; Mr. Cherrington rendered "The Song That Reached My Heart," followed by an encore, "Marguerite"; two quartettes, "How Can I Bear to Leave Thee" and "My Old Kentucky Home," were sung by Messrs. J. Adam, H. Smiley, W. Grey and S. Irvine; Mrs. Aiken gave a dainty rendering of "Alice Blue Gown," being attired in a blue costume, while Miss Peggy Toynee, in a quaint Victorian costume, sang, "The Second Minuet." The two latter performers were enthusiastically enjoyed. The singing of the National Anthem concluded the evening, a vote of thanks being passed the committee in charge.

Secretary-Treasurer, Himself
Out on Bail

NANAIMO, Oct. 25.—Edward Arthur Wilson, charged with the theft of $13,000 from the funds of the Aquarium Foundation, of which he was president, was released on bail of $20,000 last night by Magistrate C. H. Beaver-Potts here. Wilson was arrested in Vancouver yesterday and the charge is being brought against him by Robert England, who himself is out on bail on a charge of embezzling $2,800 of the same institution's funds.

Preliminary hearing of the Wilson case will be at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the local police court. England has not yet elected for speedy or jury trial, and no date has been set for his hearing. The arrest of Wilson was a development arising from a general meeting of the Aquarium Foundation yesterday, when the prosecution of England, the association's secretary-treasurer, was reviewed. After this meeting a warrant was issued for his arrest.

S. Saanich United Young People Meet

KEATING, Oct. 25.—The weekly meeting of the Young People's Society of the South Saanich United Church, was held in the church parlor on Monday evening, with Mr. A. Hafer presiding, and a large attendance of members. The devotional period was led by Miss M. Mitchell and Rev. Mr. Lees gave a ten minute talk on "The Book of Joshua."

During the business period, plans for the annual play were discussed and the various parts allotted. Rehearsals for this will start in the near future. The citizenship committee dealing with home problems, under the sponsorship of Miss M. Mitchell then took charge. The subject for the evening was "Temperance," with three of the members giving papers on this topic, namely, Miss Alma Heyer, Miss Myrtle Snyder and Mr. Harold Hamlet.

Following this games were played and a social time enjoyed. The next meeting on Monday evening, October 29, will take the form of a Hallowe'en social, which is being arranged by Misses A. Heyer and B. Snyder, and will be held in the church parlor.

CUMBERLAND, Oct. 25.—Harry Jackson, who it was thought was lost in the woods surrounding Cumberland, calmly walked out on Tuesday noon, after spending one night in the woods.

Jackson, who is well known all over Vancouver Island as an athlete and gymnastic instructor, is also well known locally as a comedian of no mean ability. To the soccer public of British Columbia he is better known as the trainer of the famous Cumberland United soccer team, traveling back east a few years ago as trainer of the famous eleven in search of Dominion soccer honors.

On Monday morning, "Tiger," as he is familiarly known, went off on a short hunting trip, intending to be back by 2 o'clock in the afternoon. As darkness came on his wife and family became anxious for his safety, and two or three search parties were organized, the hills being thoroughly combed without finding any trace.

It was generally felt, however, that providing no accident had befallen him the lost man was well able to take care of himself. This feeling was manifested on Tuesday noon when the genial Harry was noticed coming down by Pye Creek by one of the search parties, none the worse for his night in the bush, except, as he put it himself, "damnably hungry."

Prospective Buyer—But I mean within the last twenty years.

"I remember her when she was beautiful"

"IT WASN'T so long ago either. Her complexion was the envy of every girl and woman. Her radiant manner was felt the instant she entered the room. . . . But now you'd hardly know she was the same person. Her animation is gone—her clear skin is sallow. She's always tired—often irritable. . . . Here's what has been said about countless women all over the country. Yet, all this could have been prevented. The cause, often constipation, is so easily removed by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Happily, thousands of women have made this discovery. By regular eating of ALL-BRAN they have regained all that they lost in beauty and health.

But you need ALL-BRAN—not "part-bran"

It is the "bulk" in bran that relieves constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has a large amount of bulk. This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the digestive system. In a part-bran product there is seldom enough bulk to do this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran—and brings 100% results.

How different from dangerous pills

How much better than habit-forming drugs and laxatives! Which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased—and sometimes injure the system. How much pleasanter than sickening medicinal Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a delicious cereal. Serve it with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey if desired. Use it in cooking too. Mix it with other cereals—for health! Just eat two table-spoonfuls in some form daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Keep ALL-BRAN always on hand—a package of health. But be sure it is genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. At best, they can be but partially effective. Announcement from Ottawa yesterday that herring fishery would be permitted on the West Coast of Vancouver Island was received in local marine circles. The Noddy will be engaged into January now instead of being recalled from the run, and many fishermen will find employment who would otherwise be unemployed.

Rush applications to move crews from the fishing plants on the West Coast have been wired to the B.C. Coast Steamship Service, but these applications will be cancelled now it is possible to continue fishing for the reduction plants.

The output of the West Coast fisheries is likely to be materially increased by the announcement of extension of time

WNNIPEG, Oct. 25.—Smashing of grain records is becoming so frequent that it almost ceases to be news, according to W. M. Neal, general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Yesterday saw a further addition to the highest figure of the previous day, the new high spot being the loading of 2,454 cars, an increase of seven cars

HALIFAX, Oct. 25.—The Interference of Federal authorities in the Straits of Canso ferries is unwarranted and we propose to continue operating the service, taking care to pay the proper tolls for passengers and traffic," stated Hon. Percy Black, Minister of Highways in the Nova Scotia Government.

Mr. Black said he had conferred with the Attorney-General's department of the Nova Scotia Government, and was convinced that he was legally entitled to his rights in continuing the service.

"We have operated for three years," said Mr. Black, "and have not had a single accident."

JUST LIKE A WOMAN

A man went to a moneylender for a loan. The moneylender turned the business down. The would-be borrower was going out of the room in a state of dejection, when Shynock said: "Stop a minute. Last week I had one of my eyes out. If you can tell me which is the false one I'll lend you the money you want." The client looked at him. "Your right eye is the dud one," he said. "You're right," said the moneylender, "but how did you guess it?" "Fasci," replied the man. "Your right eye looks much more sympathetic than the other."
